MYTHOLOGY

FOREWORD

In a world that is sometimes vexed by change and worried by doubt, it is necessary to have explanations of the many phenomena which occur. Just as the Greeks and the Romans used myths to explain these happenings, we of the Yearbook Staff, under the direction of Mr. Norman Shaffer and Co-editors Barbara Harden and Mary Keeley, are presenting this publication as a reminder of the achievements and the activities of the year 1965.

Twenty-four hundred years ago, Pericles set forth for us high resolves. "If," he said, "Athens shall appear great to you, consider then that her glories were purchased by valiant men, and by men who learned their duty." In a resolve to drive out of our lives our ancient enemies of ignorance and disease, of poverty and intolerance, our efforts will be fruitful to the degree to which we refuse to accept anything less than excellence in our studies and accomplishments.

Modern historians begin their account of Greek history as far back as 1600 B.C. However, the Greeks could only reconstruct the vanished glories and defeats from hearsay. Gaping at massive walls, they imagined they must have been built by the legendary giants, the Cyclopes. When the dust finally settles this year, the prospects for the future may have changed dramatically. However, the memories of this year will always be vivid to us as long as we have the 1965 EAGLE in our possession.

MYTHOLOGY

The myths of ancient Greece and Rome weave around the modern imagination like a golden garland. They are reshaped again, always revealing new depths of meaning. The whole range of human emotions and human situations is there—that is why modern writers turn to myths for characters. Every phase of our life bears their incredible stamp. Legends have been thought to describe the beginnings of things and to explain natural phenomena. Their fantasy charms children and moves the soul of man.

Yes, we have been prompted to use our minds by the inventors of myths. The Greeks roused the human race to a new ambition and a sense of purpose. Man has a noble purpose: to live at the highest possible pitch of human performance—physically, morally, and intellectually. They saw man not as a servant of the gods but as the glory of creation and accorded him their deepest admiration. Each individual was to continue struggling for recognition all during life. In this endeavor though, one must neither tread on the rights of his fellow man, nor be arrogant. When Marsyas challenged Apollo to a musical contest and lost, the angry god, outraged at this mortal presumption, had him flayed mortally. Mortal aims befit mortal men. To ignore this rule is to effect a penalty.

In a world troubled by the threat of nuclear war, we must see through temptations; and to the utmost of our abilities, we must make our world a better place to live in for future generations. Hestia, Zeus's sister, was the quiet peacemaker on Mount Olympus. Her simple but vital function was to protect the sacred fire that burned in every Greek home and the public hearth of the city.

"In the pursuit of peace—in a resolve to drive out of our lives our ancient enemies of ignorance and disease, of poverty and intolerance—in the acceptance of decency as a standard of treatment for everyone—in all of these challenges, our efforts will be fruitful to the degree to which we refuse to accept anything less than excellence." President Lyndon Johnson.

Our goal cannot be obtained, however, without the highest of ideals and the most reverent faith in our everlasting God. Deborah Corcoran, Joan Caskey.

DEDICATION

With great pleasure, the Eagle staff, dedicates this yearbook to a person too often taken for granted by both the faculty and the students of Wayne Central.

She is a person who goes out of her way to help everyone. Even after a long day full of interruptions and difficulties she is still smiling. Every club, student, teacher, and administrator depends on her. Sometimes this hard-working, gracious woman is thanked, but more often she is not.
To let her know that we appreciate her running off extra club dittos, typing letters, counting money at four-thirty, and performing the thousand and one other favors which extend beyond her job, we proudly dedicate the 1965 Eagle

to Mrs. Marie Beach.

Mrs. Marie Beach

MRS. MARIE BEACH

Mrs. Beach, a native of Ontario, New York, now resides at 8 Stevens Street with her husband Robert and sons Robert Jr. and William. Her other son, Ronald, is married.

As a member of the Reform Church in Ontario, Mrs. Beach is active in Sunday School and is a member of the Fidelis Society. Mrs. Beach belongs to the Eastern Star of which she is a Past Matron.

After receiving her diploma from Ontario High School, she studied at the School of Commerce in Rochester. She worked for Todd Company, Sunsett Farms, and the Wayne Central cafeteria. In 1953 she became a secretary in the office of Wayne Central where she has worked ever since.

Because of the number of men in her family, Mrs. Beach has come to enjoy baseball and has made occasional trips to Yankee Stadium. She also likes to take trips to the mountains with her family. Like most women, Mrs. Beach enjoys shopping when she has time.

We all wish Mrs. Beach the best in the future.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Dear Seniors,

As you leave these hallowed halls of learning and set sail upon the sea of opportunity, may the friendship and the happy memories enjoyed at Wayne Central serve as an inspiration to you in the years ahead.

The members of the Board of Education of Wayne Central School congratulate you for the determination and courage you have exhibited while charting a course toward higher learning and a greater understanding of your responsibilities.

May your ship sail straight and true and bring you life's full share of happiness with God's blessing always.

Sincerely,
Lorraine B. Finley, Member
Board of Education

SUPERVISING PRINCIPAL

Dear Seniors,

The past quarter century has seen some startling changes in the scientific aspects of our lives. The advent of television, atomic energy, supersonic travel, automation, etc. has revolutionized our daily living beyond the wildest dreams of our forefathers. The whole world has been drawn closer to our homes, and we are rapidly learning how "the other half of the world" lives.

We are living in an age when we must learn to live in peace with all peoples regardless of race, creed or color if our world is to continue to exist. This can best be accomplished through education. I would urge you to continue your education as far beyond high school as possible, and I am sure that many of you will.

Sincerely,
Thomas C. Armstrong

PRINCIPAL

To the Seniors:

Change is the by-line of our present generation. These changes are many and are varied. They are constantly and rapidly assailing our world, and they compel us to adapt and to learn. Here lies the challenge to you young people who are acquiring your education today. To be the kind of adult who makes a real contribution towards making "the world a better place to live", you must be willing to think, to study, to work and to sacrifice. It is to this future that I commend each of you in the Senior Class of 1965.

Parker N. Bridges

Dear Seniors,

It is always a privilege to write a few comments in your book, but it has been a greater one knowing you.

The growth, the knowledge, and the experience you have gained in high school will be the key to your future. Use it well.

Sincerely,
Harold C. Shay

Harold C. Shay

To the Seniors of 1965:

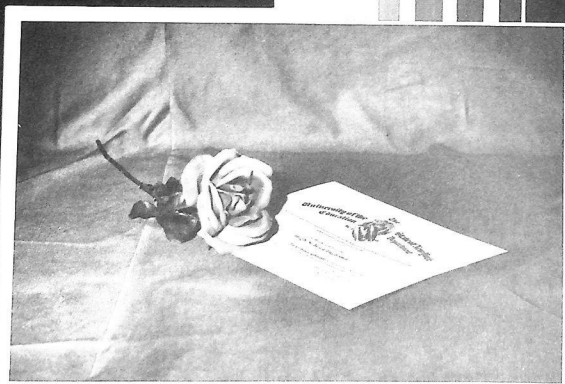

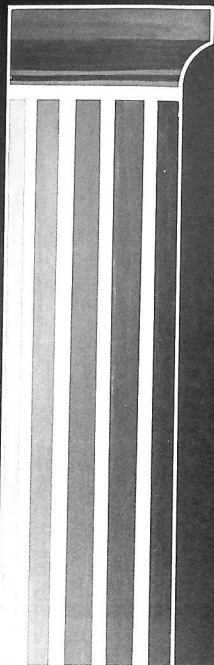

Your high school years will soon be over. Remember how far ahead it all seemed a few years ago? Time is like that. It plays tricks on you. We anticipate future events with great excitement and wonder if the day will ever arrive. All too soon the climax is reached and we wonder where the time has gone.

It is our hope that your years in Wayne have been profitable for you. At any rate, they are behind you now and your sights must be pointed toward the future. May you be happy and successful in whatever you do. Come back to see us. We are ready to render any service we can offer.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE STUDENT

Dear Students,

First I want to thank you all, the teachers and the students, for everything you did to make my year in America a real success. In the beginning when almost everything was new to me, you always helped me so that I did not have any troubles at all. I never felt that I was "foreign", but I was a Wayne Central student like you. I have found many good friends this year, and I sincerely hope that it will not be the end of our friendship when I have to leave home, but that I will meet some of you once again.

In this year, I learned very much about your country, and I like it very much! I am sure you will never forget this year, and, of course, I will always remember WAYNE CENTRAL. May God bless you always.

Love,
Claudia

GRADUATION

When Jason set out on his famed quest for the Golden Fleece he realized that he faced both hardship and sadness. Nevertheless, he conducted his search, always keeping in mind the ultimate reward which would be the fruit of ceaseless labor.

Today, at the end of their high school lives, the Seniors of Wayne Central must set out on a similar journey, one in which they must try to make the best of their lives and to contribute to the world their utmost. They must put aside the security and routine that they have known for twelve years, and begin to encounter the new experiences, both good and bad, of the adult world.

The Greeks arranged for the marriage of their child at the time of his birth. In modern world each individual must choose his own lifetime partner. Some of the graduating class will elect to assume the great responsibilities and freedoms of marriage and family life immediately after graduation.

Some will dedicate a portion of their lives to serving our country by enlisting in a branch of the service, the Army, Navy, Air Force, or any of the other armed forces. Perhaps a few will serve the underprivileged of the world by joining the Peace Corps.

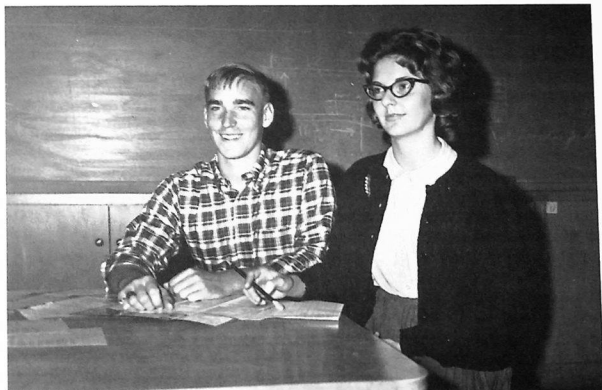

Others will go on to further education, and in doing so, will be expected to lead their fellows through the world's problems, both complex and trivial.

For the average citizen in Greek and Roman times education was not a necessary prelude to the adult life. Today, however, innumerable advantages await those who complete their high school education.

Not an end, but a beginning of life is graduation. These many past years have merely been a basis upon which to build a whole new life. "Life has loveliness to sell,

All beautiful and splendid things."

TOP TEN

Stephen Albright, William Bridges, Deborah Corcoran, Fredrick Forman, Linda Gaylord, Jill Harris, Robert Kelly, Nancy Morgan, Anne Morris, Richard Tobin.

The Greek philosopher Diogenes once said, "The foundation of every state is the education of its youth." Today, as in ancient Greece and Italy, learned generations are needed and demanded to continue advancement of civilization. These ten students have striven diligently to attain one of the most significant goals, knowledge, of our modern society, which depends upon young adults to insure tomorrows.

"Solon was under a delusion when he said that a man when he grows old may learn many things — for he can no more learn much; youth is the time for any extraordinary thing." Plato

Anne Morris

BUS DRIVERS

FACULTY AND PERSONNEL

Ever since time began there have been teachers who have brought to their students a better knowledge of the world they inhabit. The faculty by working in accord with the demands put down by the personnel have helped to broaden the wisdom of many a student. Minerva, the goddess of wisdom, influences the minds of the Greeks, whose fundamental ideas of democracy and government have greatly given today's world a basis for our understanding of the phenomena of life.

Because specialization in school subjects has become more widespread since the age of the great philosophers and scientists—Plato, Aristotle, and Euclid—there has been an urgent need for more and better teachers. Our schools today can boast of many fine teachers who are willing to devote their time and energies to the betterment of their pupils.

Teachers are continuously giving tests to challenge the knowledge of their students and the office personnel can be seen daily operating the mimeograph machines. The secretaries are also indispensable when students are missing from class, when someone has lost a valuable article, or when some important announcement must be made over the public address system.

To satisfy the appetites of the students, the cafeteria workers labor the better part of the morning to plan and prepare the meals which so many of us eat each day. For those students who care to bring their lunch, there are milk and ice cream lines attended by other members of the staff.

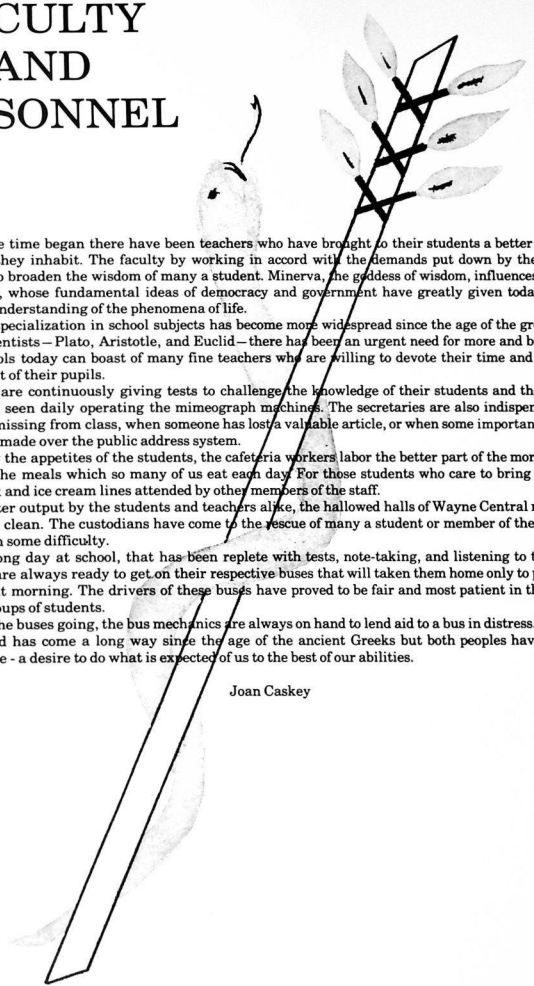

For a better output by the students and teachers alike, the hallowed halls of Wayne Central must be kept immaculately clean. The custodians have come to the rescue of many a student or member of the faculty who has come upon some difficulty.

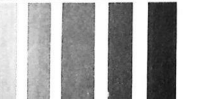

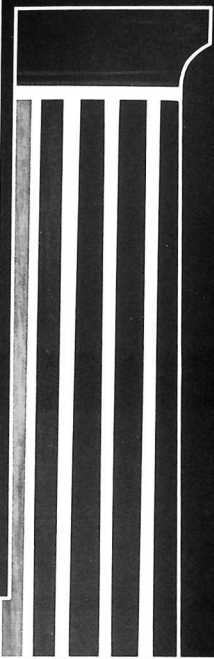

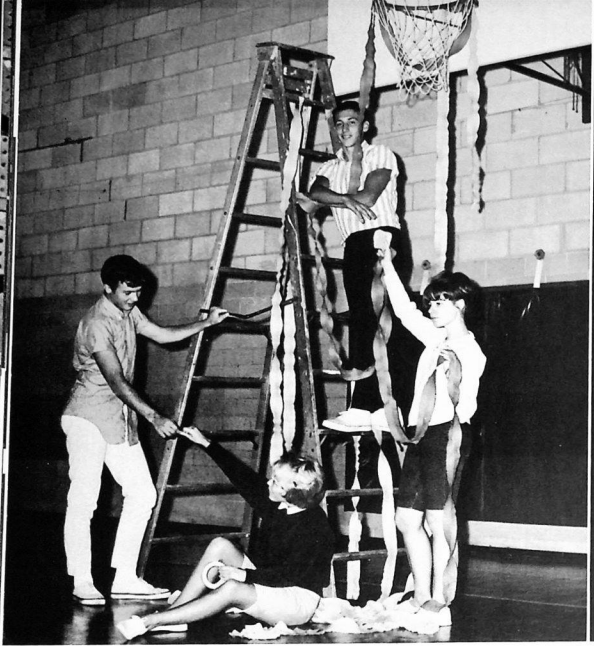

After a long day at school, that has been replete with tests, note-taking, and listening to the teachers, the students are always ready to get on their respective buses that will taken them home only to pick them up again the next morning. The drivers of these buses have proved to be fair and most patient in their dealings with noisy groups of students.

To keep the buses going, the bus mechanics are always on hand to lend aid to a bus in distress.

Our world has come a long way since the age of the ancient Greeks but both peoples have shared one common desire - a desire to do what is expected of us to the best of our abilities.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Just as it was in early times; it is today. With the Romans, the elite ruled while the minority followed. This is comparable to the set-up in our school today. Our seniors have lived and learned from valuable experiences which they pass on to the upcoming seniors and their followers. But, the seniors would never be able to do the things they do without first having been UNDERCLASSMEN themselves. The seniors of high school find that their achievements and accomplishments are due to the response and cooperation of the UNDERCLASSMEN, just as the Romans realized the importance and necessity of their minority.

Close following behind our seniors are the interested and enthusiastic juniors. These talented and eager students are led by their Zeus, President Marilyn Reynolds. She has led this class to great success and much pride for their efforts proven by both their highly complimented Junior Prom and their very excellent production of the Junior play. Much of this class's success is due to the leadership of Betty Suwijn, Vice President; Sue Leenhouts, Treasurer; and Cindy Van Hoover, Secretary; who were always in consultation with President Marilyn Reynolds.

The Mercury of success was not seen in the Junior class alone. With swift and accurate movement it became part of the Sophomore class as well. President Donna Reed indeed proved the faith her classmates placed in her. She led the sophomores through a most successful year with the help of Vice President Terry Emson, Secretary Barb Pembroke, and Treasurer Lucille Gabriel. The concentration of both the officers and the rest of the class made their dance a big success.

Fast preparing to fill the shoes of the present Sophomore class are the freshmen. They have accomplished all that they attempted. The praise that they received from their Freshman dance was well deserved. Much of their achievement was due to Patti Baker who they chose so wisely as their president. Of course Patti could not have succeeded without the help of her cabinet which consisted of Vice President Connie Bailey, Secretary Barb Stevens, and Treasurer Nancy Hilton.

The Junior High also adds much to the life of our school life. These students participate in the Senior High interests and complete the friendliness of our school. It is in the Junior High that the students, who will at one time lead our school, get the start they need to help them succeed in high school.

The Student Council of the Junior High is responsible for their dances and the leadership these students become acquainted with. Their government is formed from the students they elect to instruct them. Diane Beneway leads this organization as its president. She is assisted by Tom Gentile as Vice President, Becky Hanks as Secretary, and David Colburn as Treasurer. They are advised by Mr. Shay.

Many activities have been provided in both music and sports for these students. Apollo certainly has given them a wonderful use and understanding of his gift. The performances of the Junior band under the direction of Mrs. Updaw and the Junior chorus conducted by Miss Gullo have presented interesting and praiseworthy programs this year. The talent of many of these students will belong to the Senior High next year. Some of the events which composed the Olympic sports of ancient Grecian times can still be seen on the athletic fields of our school. The junior students have made use of their talents in these activities as well as the other sports which are offered to them. They are developing their skills in these sports to assure our school of future athletic success.

Each year these students work hard on their stationery sale. The proceeds of this sale can be seen used throughout the homerooms in the Junior High and the pictures which supplement the beauty of our halls.

The underclass portion of our school creates the hopes for the next year and keeps the excitement of this year in constant motion. These students progress one step farther each year and put forth new ideas that greatly influence the well-being of our school.

YEARBOOK

During the past ten months, the yearbook staff has been in the process of creating the '65 EAGLE for your satisfaction.

It has taken long hours, superior workmanship, and tremendous pressure to produce this noteworthy annual. Oftentimes the staff members were asked to give up much of their leisure time to complete this book. As so often happens in the end, however, they received the self-satisfaction of knowing that they had given a part of themselves to their school, student body, and faculty.

Without the strong help and guidance of our yearbook advisor, we would have had a tremendously hard time meeting the problems of the planning and designing of this book. Through Apollo's light and Minerva's wisdom, we have gained more knowledge than we ever had before, and if this light continues to shine, we will undoubtedly keep on learning until our time comes.

Barbara and I wish to extend our deepest thanks to all the students, especially the yearbook members, who, through their perseverance and time, helped produce this '65 EAGLE.

Mary Keeley
Co-Editor

Another year has slipped quietly by, but it is not to be forgotten. A difficult task, that of preparing the Wayne Central EAGLE, has been completed. The EAGLE presents a brief but precious glimpse of memories and faces, so often forgotten in time.

Mary and I would like to extend our appreciation to the student body, faculty, administration, and surrounding communities for the unfailing cooperation they have given to this year's staff.

The publication of a good annual is not an easy job. Yearbook staff members have had to be willing to give up many things, such as time and school activities. Our staff has worked with loyalty and dedication in the past eleven months. The goal was an annual that Wayne Central could be wholeheartedly proud of.

Our annual would not be what it is without the constructive criticism, able guidance, and friendly advice given us by our advisor, Mr. Shaffer. Our efforts would have been in vain without his constant assistance. Our staff, Mary, and I say, "Thank you," in deepest sincerity.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank Jane Stigel and the staff of the '64 EAGLE for helping our staff to understand the task to be accomplished.

I am certain that Doris Hightower, as a result of working with this year's staff, will have little difficulty attaining her goal next year. We wish you, Doris, and your staff, good luck.

Thus we present to you the '65 EAGLE in the hope that you will cherish it and the memories it holds for you.

SENIOR HIGH STUDENT COUNCIL

Fortunately the ruling body of Wayne Central School isn't unrealistic and unstable as the governments of Ancient Greece were at times. In accordance with the Delphic oracle, new leaders rose to power while other capable men were ostracized because of some myth.

Each fall our new elected officers and homeroom representatives set to work to unite the student body in an effort to promote understanding between faculty and students and to promote prestige for the school.

The council hierarchy, comprised of Vice President Lucinda VanHoover, Secretary Vicki Hill, and Treasurer Barbara Stevens, under the direction of President William Bridges, planned for several student council dances, roller skating parties for the Foreign Exchange Student Fund, a Student Handbook, more assemblies, and a Debate Club. Mr. Bridges is the nonpartisan mentor in all of the council's activities.

On the Junior High level, President Diane Beneway, Vice President Thomas Gentile, Secretary Rebecca Hanks, and Treasurer David Colburn gained practice and experience in student government. Along with the usual prosperous stationery sale, the dances, and the food drive for needy families at Christmas, the seventh and eighth graders showed fine intentions in their Joanne Morgan Memorial Fund Drive. Their efforts were also proved fruitful in an attempt to provide a better Junior High assembly program. The Messieurs Palmatier and Shay serve as advisors to the council.

In their herculean task to please the students, the faculty, the administration, and the community, the Junior and Senior High Student Councils have fared well.

To the muted voices of dissent I remind that although the tongues of men may be chained, their minds cannot be touched.

The National Honor Society exists to promote scholarship, character, service, and leadership among the students of Wayne Central. Just as the gods and goddesses of mythology represented truth and wisdom, the deserving members of the society display these qualities by their daily participation and leadership in school programs. Under the supervision of Mrs. Miller along with President Bill Beach, Vice President Rich Tobin, Secretary Bonnie Hayes, and News Reporter Terry White, this group of students strives to uphold these high ideals.

Governmental proceedings have advanced quite readily since the days of the early Greeks and Romans. But there is still one thing that all the peoples of the world want—freedom. Just as the Greeks impressed upon their people the importance of a democracy, so does the Wayne Central Student Court ask its students to obey the rules set down by the administration along with the student body.

The Student Court follows very closely the procedures of the highest courts. It tries the complaints presented by the student body and contained in a list of violations and penalties compiled by Student Council. Chairman Connie Chase along with Secretary Marilyn Reynolds, District Attorney Bonnie Hayes, and Assistant District Attorney Dan Doyle, endeavors to maintain law and order at Wayne. Mr. Powell, the court's advisor, is always willing to lend any assistance which may be needed in dealing with the disputes brought before the group.

NEWSPAPER CLUB

Even in mythological times, people were interested in the current events. They depended on Mercury to bring them news; but now, newspapers present the world's affairs to the masses.

Under the able direction of Mrs. Wetherell the staff publishes a monthly paper to keep the student body aware of recent events around Wayne.

LIBRARY CLUB

To enter the world of mythology we have only to go into the school library and lose ourselves in a fascinating book. Hermes, messenger of the gods, was greatly respected then as books are now. The girls, under the guidance of Mrs. Martin discover the importance of books and learn how to help others find volumes they need or desire. They perform an important service to the student body and have fun throughout the school year.

Kathy Stone

FRENCH CLUB

As the gods of mythology helped to explain every imaginable force in the universe, students learn about the European way of life in French Club. The fire of understanding has been kindled in the members of the club by the picturesque, informative travelogues presented to them. Mrs. Miles, the advisor, has made every effort to insure the students with note-worthy experiences to recall from their monthly meetings. President Betsy Morris, Secretary Jean Rueger, Treasurer Kathy Stone, and Refreshment Chairman Joan Caskey included in this year's agenda a French movie in Rochester, a Christmas party, a French play, and an eventful dinner in May. The theme throughout is accented on France—its culture, music, art, and its people.

Just as the ancient Greeks worshipped their gods in order to receive lasting good health and to be cured of sickness, our civilization today looks to nurses and doctors for aid and comfort during illness. Although all of the members of S.H.O. will not become nurses, they learn the helpful fundamentals of home safety and medical care.

Under the guidance of Advisor Mrs. Brewer, President Linda Lehr, Vice President Marlene Schommer, Secretary Sharon Holloway, and Treasurer Mary Doyle, the Student Health Organization has visited several hospitals and has assisted in immunization clinics this year.

SCIENCE CLUB

Ancient Greece was the birthplace of many of the statutes of science. One philosopher, Aristotle, would walk around Athens and ask one question, then counter with another, so that the answers would contradict. He wanted to know why such a thing would happen, not how. Archimedes developed relative weights using water as a base.

Science Club allows the students to continue their studies out of class. Each student who wants to, has a chance to supplement his work in a well equipped lab. Each year this club will take trips to different educational places like the Atmospheric Science Research Center.

Headed by Mr. Cataldo, and with Scott Berand as President, Harold Jesse as Vice President, and Tim Ryan as Secretary-Treasurer, this club operates smoothly.

Farming has progressed a great deal since mythological times. In those days the people depended upon Ceres for a good harvest, but now the future farmers keep up with modern advancements for success. Under the guidance of their advisor Mr. Faulks, President Devlyn Hurley, Vice President Ray Appleman, Secretary Jack Beha, Treasurer James Pannetiz and Sentinel Edward Haak, they grow prize-winning fair exhibits and encourage good fellowship. Each year they sponsor a clothing drive and an entertaining donkey basketball game.

PROJECTION CLUB

As the mythological signs of the Zodiac and astrologers in their studies, the members of Projection Club each day are prepared to serve the needs of the educational process at Wayne Central School. The boys who operate the projectors and tape recorders make the teachers' work less burdensome and provide a welcome respite from ordinary instruction for the students. President Jack Gagliano, assisted by Vice President Tim Ryan, Secretary Marvin Maier, and Treasurer Guy Kunzer, led this organization well. Their Advisor Mr. Slater helps the boys in mastering the intricacies of the various machines. We are grateful to this group for the invaluable service which they render to us.

In ancient Greece, the household goddess, Vesta, was worshipped by all members of the family. Today a homemaker must do such a variety of never-ending tasks that she should be, and is, highly respected and relied upon by the entire household.

The organization is composed of girls who will someday be homemakers. The members learn useful ways to save time and energy in their work, and they gain valuable experience in the art of home economics. Led by Advisor Mrs. Kiersblick, President Bonnie Buys, Vice President Clara Knights, and Secretary-Treasurer Linda Osborne, the future homemakers participate in several activities, among which are the fall and spring rallies.

JUNIOR HIGH HOMEMAKING

On Mount Olympus the gods and goddesses lived for many years. Each mythological character had a specific responsibility and was expected to do his work well.

Vesta, the goddess of the hearth, and Lares and Penates, the gods of the household, were to watch over the housewife and her home. The gods entrusted some of their secrets, such as the power of fire and the art of sewing, to man.

Each mother was to pass on to her daughter the recipe for a harmonious family life.

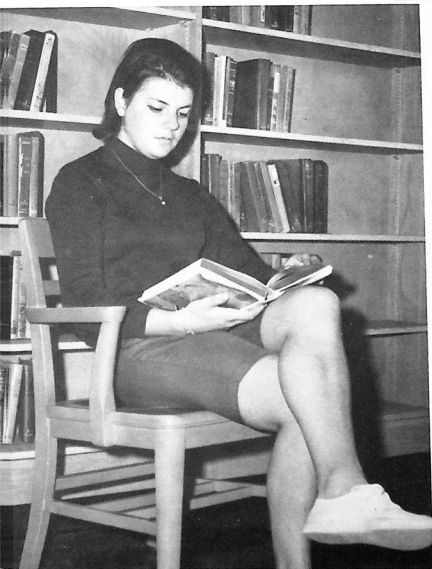

In junior high homemaking the students learn the correct way of sewing and cooking. They may present fashion shows for their friends and parents; or they may go to Rochester to see a style show at one of the department stores.

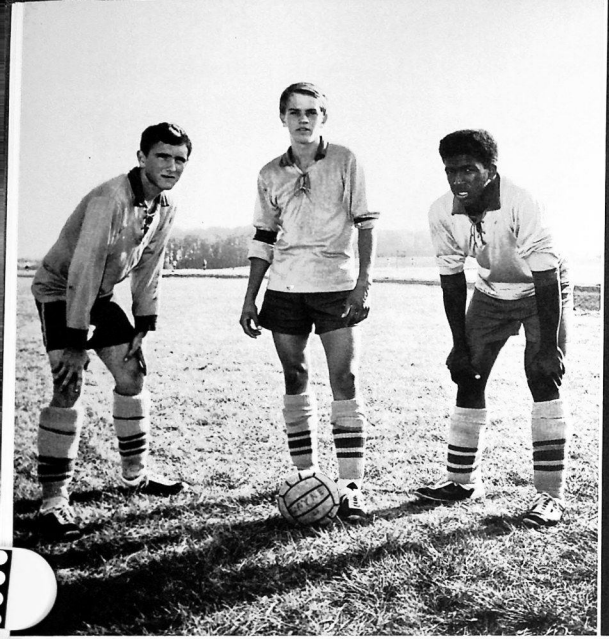

Since the members believe that no officers are needed, they plan to organize everything together.

SPORTS

SPORTS

Our school today is greatly indebted to the people of ancient times for their interest in physical strength. Because of the ideas and actions of the ancient Greeks, those of us in Wayne Central are able to participate in sports as we do. The Marathon runner in his course from Athens to Sparta brought about the present day interest in track and field events. Due to the competitive desires of the city-states of olden times, the Olympic games were developed.

This fall was indeed a most successful one in the area of sports. We saw our Varsity soccer team carry our colors high as they again completed an undefeated season in the county and proceeded to sectionals. Coach Gentile and co-captains Rich Tobin and Bob Kelly worked well in planning their attacks and carrying them through with very few mistakes. Co-captains Paul Suwjin and Darwin Bushart and Mr. Bowden saw an equally rewarding year with the J.V.'s. With the performances of these boys this year, it is apparent that we can look forward to great accomplishments in the coming seasons.

Following the boys on their every play were the Varsity and the J.V. cheerleaders. This year's squads consisted primarily of those girls with at least a year's experience although there were those who were new to us as cheerleaders. Carol Tobin and Karen Rowell, Captain and co-captain respectively, worked hard with the rest of their squad this year to develop a group of girls who worked in perfect harmony and carried through our tradition of good sportsmanship. Encouraging and inspiring their classmates on every goal or basket were the J.V. cheerleaders guided by their captain and co-captain, Sue Triou and Vicki Hill, respectively.

The fall sports write-up could never be complete unless a good word was added for our sensational cross country team. Day after day these boys could be seen working out as they completed numerous laps around the school. Captains Rod Phelps and Bob Crombach were very pleased with the "Harriers" excellent exhibitions again this year. Mr. Thompson is indeed pleased to think that out of his other top runners: Jack Kelly, Bill Caskey, Dick Abrams, Mike Cass, and Joe Collins, four will be returning.

Our sports scene would never be complete without mention of the basketball team. Everyone around here has heard of the Wayne "Eagles," and there is not one of us who isn't proud that we can say we go to Wayne and that Rich, Bob, Ron, Ace, Don, and Dick and the rest of the team are our friends. These boys have indeed become well known, not only for their abilities, but also for their gentlemanly manners. Coach Joseph really works his boys hard, but how can anyone expect to be "tops" without practice and a goal to work for. The "Terror of the Hard Woods" said that his boys shown forth so well because of his guidance. Actually it was the boys who brought about the commendable season and their success. With these boys to look forward to as our upcoming Varsity, our basketball future is secure.

Those boys who find the tactics of wrestling more engrossing formed a competent squad. Since practice is supposed to make perfect, every day in the winter, regardless of what else was going on, we found the enthusiastic wrestlers trying out new holds and improving the techniques which they were already skilled in. Mr. Miller, after this intense training with his wrestlers, was glad to see the success of the boys. As in any other sport, the future athletes are trained and drilled in their J.V. experience. Again this year the J.V.'s had their outstanding wrestlers and carried their team to their victories.

Spring brings renewed energy stored from the winter. With all this energy waiting for a chance to be released we found our track stars clearing their hurdles, pole vaulting, and just plain running. Around and around these energetic boys traveled as they tried to increase their speed. Mr. Sones and his famous word, "PRACTICE," drove the boys to their list of victories and helped some of the boys work into condition for the sectionals.

Mr. Heimberger in his first year as Varsity baseball coach was far from disappointed. He had good boys to work with and he made them work. His choice of Rich Tobin and Don Gardner as co-captains was indeed wise as their success showed. Fielding practice, base running, batting practice, and all the other necessary practices were not in vain. They added many more victories to their list of successes. Mr. La Chuisa and his co-captains worked with the Junior Varsity and built up their unsurpassable infield and outfield. Constant practice accounted for their good fortune.

The girls are not left out when it comes to sports. Soccer intramurals and field hockey intramurals were offered to the girls this fall. Sports weren't limited to fall alone. This winter found the girls playing basketball, volleyball, and exercising their abilities in tumbling. Many of the girls enjoy softball, so intramurals were set up in this sport also. On occasion play-days were set up for the girls to compete against other schools. Marcia Riker has worked hard this year as intramural chairman.

For our athletes there are the Leader's Clubs. The boys were organized with Mr. Gentile under their capable officers: President—Robert Kelly; Vice President—Ron Bradstreet; and Secretary-treasurer—Bill Beach. From the dances they sponsored last year they were able to purchase a new score clock and from the receipts of this year's dances they will supply our school with a wrestling score clock. These boys worked hard to promote goodwill among the boys of the neighboring schools. Hard work on the part of the girls in Leader's Club will earn them a certificate of membership, a Leader's Club pin, and eventually their letter. With careful consideration, President Jill Harris, Vice President Jeanne Appleton, Secretary-treasurer Cindy Van Hoover, and Intramural Chairman Marcia Riker planned a most successful and rewarding athletic banquet.

To us of Wayne our sports are very important and that is probably the reason we excel at them. We are laden with good coaches and able athletes. The abilities our students in sports activities have, made us well known and have brought about a courteous manner to all of our students. Our sportsmanship is very commendable and we are all proud of our school.

MUSIC

MUSIC

Since earliest times, music has been a part of everyone's life. Odysseus in his mythical trip encountered the Sirens, who enchanted his men with their beautiful music. The magical flow of music from Pan and his flute entranced many of his listeners, as did the harp playing of Orpheus, the son of Apollo. Along with his ability to play the harp, Orpheus had the gift of song and could make the birds and beasts of the woodland raise their voices in a glorious chorus. These melodies and the songs of the past ages have endured and are with us today.

The choral aspect of our school includes many students. The Glee Club, directed by Miss Gullo, who is assisted by President Lennie Henderson and Secretary Betsy Morris, performs in assemblies and publicly at the Christmas and Spring concerts. If a pupil is especially gifted, he may participate in the All-County Chorus, the All-State Concert, or an individual ensemble.

The Junior High chorus is also a great asset in the vocal program of our school. These students perform at Christmas and lend their voices at various assembly programs. The training received in Junior High helps to insure the formation of future glee clubs.

For the students who are instrumentally inclined, there is the band. Every Tuesday and Thursday mornings, these young musicians are guided by Mrs. Roberta Updaw in the preparation of their pieces. Elected to aid Mrs. Updaw are President Jill Harris, Vice President Betsy Morris, Secretary Chris Cantin, and Treasurer Lennie Henderson. The efforts of these students were well-rewarded with the invitation to perform for President Lyndon Johnson upon his arrival in Rochester. Among the performances of the Senior Band are their assemblies, their Spring concert, their participation in All-County, All-State, and area sectionals. Each year various students receive awards for their ratings in individual competition.

To encourage good sportsmanship and enthusiasm of the spectators at basketball games, the Pep Band aids the cheerleaders by playing our school's songs. This band consists of the students who desire to promote school spirit by adding to the excitement of the games.

The members of the Junior High Band, under the direction of Mr. Raymond Hontz, are also diligent in their attempts to present appreciable music. Assisting Mr. Hontz are President Eileen Collins, Vice President Jim Switzer, Secretary-Treasurer Melinda Bell, and Librarians Bob Gardner and Dona Fisher. While training for the Senior Band Band, these students also enjoy the satisfaction of participating in assemblies during the year.

The division of the music department are alike in the amount of enjoyment and satisfaction which they convey to all.

As you proceed through life, remember, Senior, that popular will is not the ultimate test of right and wrong. Be wisely dissatisfied. There is an eternal justice and a true citizenship that demands the self-knowledge and the wisdom to recognize it and to obey it. Examine your essence.

"Whoever I am or whatever I am doing . . . some kind of excellence is within my reach."
